To Whom It May Concern:

Our organization publishes an aircraft price guide for the aircraft dealer/broker community. The price guide is quarterly and it is called Vref - Aircraft Value Reference.

Prices in our guide are determined in a variety of ways including actual dealer contact. Each quarter our staff will call dealers who specialize or who are knowledgeable in certain types of aircraft. Typically these dealers will tell our researcher what airplanes in a particular market have been selling for. We believe Jerry Temple to be one of these knowledgeable dealers.

Mr. Temple is an expert in Twin Cessna airplanes. He is a writer and regular contributor to Cessna Owners' magazines as well as other aviation publications including General Aviation News. His knowledge stems from his heavy involvement in the resale segment of general aviation, primarily Cessna 310s, 340s, 414s and 421s. He not only knows the market prices for each year model, but he can also be very helpful in outlining the sometimes subtle differences between model years.

We value Jerry Temple's expertise regarding the Twin Cessna marketplace. His experience coupled with an ability to look at the good and bad aspects of a particular market make him an important contributor to the accuracy of our publication.

Sincerely,

Fletcher Aldredge
